WHAQUA, Ill., Sept. 4 .- A fearful acci dent happened at the Assumption coal shaft, about seven miles south of here, at an early hour this morning. In lowering a care, when about 200 feet from the bottom the wire cable broke and the cage fell with terific force to the bottom, demoiishing everything in its way. The shaft is somewhat sigzag in shape, and is 1,000 feet deep. The engineer became rattled at the mishap, and losing control of his engine, let the up-bound cage go up through the roof the shaft-house, carrying complete destruction in its path. The side of the engine-room was tors out and the cable drums were wrecked. twelve men were at work below and they have not as yet been taken out. As no haft exists, they are in a very bad posi-thus entombed in the mine. Barrow Escape of the Clerk of the Bre

Voort House.
CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 4.—Shortly before 4 a.
m. to-day the glass roof which covered the entire office of the Breevort House, on Madion street, near Clark, fell with a crash The clerk was the only person in the office at s time, and he barely escaped being crushed by the falling glass, fron and wood crushed by the falling glass, iron and wood work. The guests, who were awakened by the noise, rushed to the office to find it a mass of crushed glass and other debris. There was something of a panic in the corridors of the hotel when the noise was first heard, but the night clerk quickly assured the guests that there was no danger, and their fears subsided. Had the accident happened earlier probably many persons would have been killed or injured, as the Brevoort office is filled with guests and loungers usually until long past midnight. The accident is supposed to have been caused by a heavy exhaust pipe falling from the roof to the skylight.

SHE SHOT HIM.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Sept. 4 .- "Look out, Mr faylor, I am going to shoot!" said Miss Julia hite, as she sent a 22-calibre rifle bail through Gibson Taylor's skull at Sennett Sunday afternoon. Miss White is a daughter of Maj. N. T. White, an attorney of nett. Mr. Taylor was a nephew of Capt. E. L. Taylor of Winchester, Ky. Miss White had emptied the rife a few minutes before shooting at sparrows. Taylor reloaded it himself, but had no time to warn Miss White that it was loaded before she pulled the trigger. Taylor cannot recover. She was visiting in Sen-which was thrown upon the chain.

As the boat struck the crank flew from the centerboard winch and struck the corner of the table at which Howard Gould and Mr. Boyd were sitting at lunch with such force as to break off a large piece of the table top. Cogs were torn from their windlass and the entire starboard apparatus was generally disarranged. Capt. Haff is hopeful that the damage may be repaired in time for to-morrow's race for the Cape May Cup.

Death in the family of Mrs. James Gould will prevent either George or Howard Gould from sailing with the Vigilant should she start.

Institutions Questioned.

MESSEY CANNOT AGREE.

A Case New Pending in Court to Deter mine Whether St. Philomena's In dustrial School and the House of the Guardian Angel Are Orphan Asyluma or Not-Babert Hoyle's Will.

A peculiar condition of affairs exists among the managers of certain Catholic institutions because of the bequests of the late Bobert Boyle, who died some five years ago. His will, among other bequests, left one-half o about $22,000 to be divided among four charttable institutions. Two of these were St. Vincent de Paul Society and the Little Sisters of the Poor. To these the sum of $18,000, or thereabouts, was duly paid. The other $8,000 was left to be divided by the trustee named in the will, between the two Catholic orphan asylums which the Archbishop of St. Louis should decide were the most needy.

The will named David Hennessey, the real estate dealer, as the trustee. Some litiga tion delayed the settling of the estate so that it was not until the summer of 1898 that Mr. Hennessy was able to fulfill the conditions of his trust. He then cast about and decide upon the institutions known as St. Philome-na's Industrial School and the House of the Guardian Angel. To these he made preparation to pay the money. He gave letters to that effect to the sisters of that institution.

This was on Aug. 21, 1893.

The Catholic Orphan Board, learning of Mr. Hennessey's intentions, brought the matter before Archbishop Kenrick and showe to him that the two institutions named were not in reality Orphan asylums. The St. Philomena School, it was claimed, was an industrial school and was practically self-supporting, while the House of the Guardian angel was a reformatory. Upon their repre-sentation, on Ang. 21, the same day on which Mr. Hennessey's decision was made, Archbishop Kenrick wrote a letter to Mr. Hennessey saying that he thought the two most needy orphan asylums were St. Joseph's Asylum for boys and St. Ann's Asy-om for girls.

On Aug. 22, however, the sisters from St. Philomena's and the House of the Guerdian Angel broughts their letters from Mr. Hennessey to Archbishop Kenrick and he O K'd the selection. He was in feeble health and it is believed he forgot the first decision he

Just at this time Archbishop Kain was appointed coadjutor and came to St. Louis. The matter was laid before him by the Board of Orphans' Homes, and he im-mediately notified Mr. Hennessey that he Fatal Accident With a Rifle Supposed to was in charge of the diocese and would not sanction the money being paid to sanction the money being paid to st. Philomena's and the House of the Guardian Angal. Mr. Hennessey replied that his choice had been made and sanctioned by Archbishop Kenriek. Archbishop Kein then notified him that he had talked with the sisters of the institutions named, and they waived their claim to the bequest. But Mr. Hennessey was obdurate, and said he would either pay the money to the institutions he had selected or none.

The matter ran along in this way for several weeks, when Mr. Hennessey notified Archbishop Kain that the trest had about expired, and that if he did not allow the money to be paid to St. Philomona's and the House of the Guardian Angel it would be turned over to the heir of Robert Boyle. At this Archbishop Kain at once caused a civil suit to be instituted to compel Mr. Hennessey, as trustee, to carry out his trust by paying the money over as the Archbishop desired, or else forfeit his trust. The case was heard at the last term of court and Judge Philon, without making any decision, ordered the two institutions, St. Philomena's and the House of the Guardian Angel, to be made co-defendants and answer at the next term of court.

During the trial the main points in the petition of the plaintiff brought out were that neither of the institutions named were orphan asylums, and at any rate Archbishop Rennessey has the surful Fr. Ziegler, in whose parish St. Phelomena's is located, testified that it was an orphan asylum, as all the girls in it were orphans. The plaintiff alleged that it was an industrial school practically self-supporting. Another plees of testimony brought out were that neither of the institutions named to the board that he would designate St. Joseph's and St. Ann's if he were paid a commission for getting the money together, of $400. Mr. Brady of the Orphans' Board, was that Mr. Hennessey had stated to the board that he would designate St. Joseph's and St. Ann's if he were paid a commission for getting the money together, of $400. Mr. Brady said that Mr. Hennessey afterward wi

Paris, Sept. 4 .- I am able to state upon un doubted authority what is the exact present situation as to the domestic troubles between Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbit, and to add that the details cabled to THE WORLD and Post-Dispatch last week were correct in every substantial particular. Mrs. Vanderbilt is at Schwalbach with her three chil-dren. Col. and Mrs. William Jay have been with her. There has practically been no nmunication between Mr. Vanderbilt and his wife for some weeks past, unless through Mr. Chauncy Depew, who called here last week to consult with Mr. Vanderbilt on the death of President Newell of the Lake Shore

Schwalbach is on the direct line from! Paris to Homburg, and it is very possible that Mr. Depew stopped over there to see Mrs. Van-derbilt, if so his interview with her was a very brief one, since he is reported to have ing Paris. Col. Jay acts in all respects as Mrs. Vanderbilt's representative and will be her counsel in any pecualary or other; settlement. The publicity given to the matter, lowever, has caused all parties more serously to consider the inevitable great candal of a divorce case, and I am inform hat renewed and vigorous efforts are being nembers of the Vanderbilt family and by inimate friends of both parties to bring abou at least a formal reconciliation. It is indeed now considered probable that this will be effected. Col. Jay has arrived in Paris and negotiations for settlement will prob-ably be at once undertaken.

The open rupture between Mr. and Mrs. anderbit occurred at the close of the yachting trip on the Valliant, when Mrs. lic insult upon her husband and his friends of the yachting party, being one of a long-continued series of such affronts, that a temporary separation, at least, was agreed upon. It is stated by Mr. Vanderbilt's most ntimate friends that his very open relations rith the girl Nellie Neustraetter were so publicly paraded with the sole intention of reing Mrs. Vanderbilt to action. The friends say that Mr. Vanderbilt's conduc has always heretofore been of a most exem plary character, and that he really has no affection for the woman; therefore, it is not case of fascination.

Danesfield, Schott Murray's famous place on the Thames, had already been engaged by Mr. Vanderbilt at the time of the rupture, Vanderbilt should return to America, and ndeavored to secure Mr. Murray's consent to subjecting the property. This Mr. Murray declined to permit, and Miss. Vanderblit re-mained there until a fortnight ago. It is, therefore, not probable that the Duke and Duchess of Fife made a visit to Danesfield. although the statement that they did so wa published in the London papers. Royalty makes the most careful inquiries of the consenoid before any such visit, and such in uiries could not have failed to elicit inormation of the trouble between the Vanilts. Moreover, the absence of the master of the household on such an occasion would be considered an unpardonable afrost. I am informed, however, that the roung Dure of Mariborough has recently aid a visit to Danesfield, and gossip is rife in London and Paris as to the possibility of a marriage being arranged between him and the eldest Miss Vanderbilt, who is now a very pretty girl of nearly 18. It is well known that the Duke will not be able to keep up Blenheim unless his present income is very largely increased by marriage or otheriss Vanderbilt into society during the coming winter in either London or Paris, but whether or not there is a reconciliation it is very probable that Mrs. Vanderbilt will shortly return to America.

COMMODATIONS FOR THEM.

Only Forty-three Young Ladies of the Graduating Class of Eighty-five of Last Year Permitted to Continue Their Studies for Positions as Teach ers-Toe Complication Caused by Rule Limiting Normal School Pupils to 150-Hardships it Works.

Forty-two young ladies, last June's graduates of the High School, were turned away from the Normal School yesterday. They wished to consecrate themselves to the cause of education in the St. Louis public Schools and went to the High School Building on Grand avenue yesterday to begin the year and a half course in pedagogic studies in the normal depart-ment necessary to fit them for teachers. A total of eighty-five High School graduates of last year presented themselves. They were first told that they might take an extension of their vacations until next Thursday. This order was recalled and Principal Soldan broke the sad news that he had directions to enforce a long unobserved rule, namely, that the number of pupils in the Normal department must not exceed 150. Already 107 of last year's Normal pupils had reported for studies; therefore only forty-three of the eighty-five High School graduates could be admitted. Mr. Soldan selected the fortythree who obtained the highest averages at the examinations last year and enrolled them as Normal pupils.

The other forty-two who perhaps have been The other forty-two who perhaps have been looking toward a career as teachers since they entered the High School, were obliged to return home as disconsolate as if their lives had been irredeemably blighted. It is not unlikely that some of the forty-two would never have entered upon a four-years' course in the High School if they had the slightest reason to fear that they would be refused admission to the Normal School, when they passed their that examinations. Prof. Soldan acted in accordance with the rule laid down by a "Special Committee on Accommodations at the High School," which reported at a special meeting of the Board of Education held July 81 last. The committee said:

The Teachers Committee listened to Miss Schmidt and referred her case to Supt. Long with directions to find out how many High School graduates were in the same predicament. Mr. Long, speaking of the matter today, said:

"The rule limiting the number of Normal pupils to 150 has been in existence for several years, but it has not heretofore been strictly enforced. At the present time, however, the Normal graduates for two years back, are waiting for positions as teachers, and the room for pupils at the High School is limited; hence the board desires to enforce the rule." their complaints, and when the Teachers

Prof. Soldan said that there had been some complaint by parents whose daughters were turned away, and doubtless the rigid enforcement of the 180 limit rule worked a hardship, but there are 200 Normal graduates waiting for positions as teachers.

JOHN L. G. CHARLTON DEAD. The Death of France Chandler Hastened

His Untimely End. John L. G. Charlton, a prominent railroad passenger man, for some years retired, died at his home, 2608 North Garrison avenue, at 8 o'clock this morning of a avenue, at 8 o'clock this morning of a complication of diseases. Mr. Charlton was 44 years old. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his lost.

The deceased was a warm personal friend of the late France Chandler, general passenger ageat of the Wabash Railroad, and the shock of Mr. Chandler's death is said to have histened his death. Mr. Charlton and Mr. Dhandler were together for years. During the time if the Chandler was senger ageat of the Missouri Pacific Mr. Charlton was his assistant and when Mr. Chandler left the Missouri Pacific for the Wabash he took Mr. Charlton with him in the capacity of assistant, general passenger agent, which position he resigned to take that of General Passenger Agent of the Mobile & Ohb.

Since he resigned from the latter position he has been unable to attend to railroad business and has lived a retired life at his home. The trouble his death was gathering of water in the cavity above the heart. The water was drawn several times, but the pressure destroyed one of his lungs, which so weakened him that the doctors gave up lope of restoring him to health. Since the death of his cld associate he has been sinking much more regulation.

This morning Donegan identified Mages as the man who had induced him to go into the game and who received the check.

Donegan told another pitiful story. He said he was supporting his aged mother and a younger brother on his small farm, and the check of which he was fleeced, he said, represented his hard-earned labor with a crop that yielded 400 bushels of wheat. He sold the wheat and the check received was needed to meet a note that has since fallen due. He was met on the street by Mages, he said, and the latter represented that he was the son of P. J. Duffy, a real estate broker on Pine street, Donegan was drunk. Mages, he said, took him to several salcons and finally went to Life's, where they got into the dice game, first for drieks, then for money. When Donegan lost all his ready money he asked someone to cash his cheek. He was told to indorse the paper he claims by hiages, who told him, it is alleged, that whatever he won he would divide with him if he would call at his father's office the next day. The check was indorsed and it was only a minute or two until its face value, minus 4, was eaten up by the heavy bets and what is alleged to have been crooked throwing of the dice. Donegan then quit and claims that Mages excused him. Then he could not be found at Duffy's office and Donegan called on the police to aid him. The check was traced, it is said, to John Camp, salconist, at Twenty-first and Chestnut, who is claimed to have purchased it. He stated that he paid a beer bill to the Stifel Brewery with it. When the check afterward reached the Franklin Bank, on which it was calleged skin game, and Bentiey is the bartender in the salcon where the game was played. The latter admits that he played in the game.

CLARKE ELECTED:

in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 4.-Unofficial returns from forty counties show that the Democrats have carried every county by majorities ranging from 150 to 1,500. Carrol County, the home of Powell Clayton, went Democratic by 150. Gen. Clarke returned this morning from Helena. He estimates says he is elected by over 80,000 majority. All river counties, where there is a large Republican vote, went Democratic. In Cleand at the same time the Democratic majority will be larger. In this county the entire Democratic ticket is elected from 1,000 to 1,-500 majority. In the country precincts the vote is three to one for the Democratic ticket. In Desha County, heretofore a Republican county, not a single Populist vote was polled, and the county returned a Democratic majority of over 500, iwo amendments to the constitution were voted for, one authorizing counties to levy a 8-mili tax for road purposes and another authorizing the Governor to fill vacancies in office by appointment. Many counties voted against these amendments, but it is believed at State Central Committee beasquarters that both will be adopted by small majorities.

COLORADO POPULISTS.

Marshalling the Factions for This Even ing's Convention. PUEBLO, Colo., Sept. 4 .- The hour for the opening of the Populist State Convention was changed from 12 o'clock until 8 by order of Mr. Doleman, Chairman of the State Central Committee. This action was by Thomas M. Patterson. The Governor's rooms, like the Patterson beadquarters, are constantly thronged with delegates. The anti-Waites lack a candidate for Governor. Congressman Pence and J. G. Balley of Canon City are the most prominent meationed, but neither is inclined to make a contest against Waite. Should the Governor not be nominated on the first ballot, he will not be nominated at all, as many delegates who are pledged to him admit he cannot be elected. A proposition has been made to Waite to accept the endorsement of the convention as the Populist candidate for United States senator in lies of a renomination. The Governor has not yet replied to this suggestion. There is likely to be a prolonged contest over the organization of the convention. by Thomas M. Patterson. The Governor's

The forests owned by the university and; in all probability, the magnificent pine tract will spe completely ruined. The pine is the finear in the State and as yet had not been molested by the hand of the woodsman. It had been constantly increased value ever since the property first came into possession of the university and in a year of two more would have been worth double the first investments. Now all that remains of the valuable tract is a lot of scerched stumps and branchless trees, many of which are still burning with great flerceness.

It is believed that Baronette and Shell Lake has been wiped out. These are towns of central the woods along the roads are a solid mass of fames.

Meager reports have been gained at the railroad offices, for the reason that telegraphic communication with the Lake Superior country is almost entirely cut off, the lines being down on account of the burning of the poles. Reports from further down the lines are to the effect that the fires are of terrible magnitude and that small villages in the interior of the pinery country must have suffered an almost total destruction.

One of the marvelous circumstances of the becasion is the escape of so many cattle and horses. Many were absolutely unscathed, though no one can tail how they escaped the ordeal of fire. Others are pitfully burned, and steps are tardily being taken to put them out of their misery.

Testerday afternoon, following the rain, a strong breeze swept up from the south, and soon the fames, which had been quenched to moidering by the morning showers, were vain fanned to a blaze, and hundreds of umins of smoke began to ascend from the loos. The fire will not be whoily out for any days, unless there are heavy rains, but hers is no danger, as the underbrush is borned out clean, and there is no possibility of any spread. The intensity and insatiability of the fire can be seen from the fact that corduroy fills, where the logs were buried under several feet of earth, are entirely eaten out, the fire eating its way through under the entire width of the road.

Sy. Paul, Minn., Sept. 4.—Thomas Fits-gerald, the land examiner of the St. Paul & Duluth road, has turned up safe and sound. He was known to be in the heart sound. He was known to be in the heart of the district, and it was feared that he had been lost together with his force of men. He had seen forest fires before and warned his men to make for Hinckley, and they just got away in time. As they entered Hinckley he picked up a crippled woman who was half dead with lear and exhaustion and carried her to the Eastern Minnesota track, on which so many people were taken for safety. They reached Hinckley as the rush began, and as several of the crew are missing, Mr. Fitzgerald fears that they may be among the lost. The others were with him on the train that went to superior.

(Minn.) special to the Dispatch says: The atry to the north and northeast of this city is still burning furiously, but the fires have expended their fury in the immediate vicinity of Brainard. Thousands of tons of hay have been consumed in Crow Wing County, and many farm-houses have been destroyed.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 4.—It seems that the worst danger now in Minnesota is to the southeast of Brainard and Little Falls, and that section is being watched anxiously. Reports received by the railroads along their lines do not indicate that the end has yet come. The Northern Pacinc Proports that along their lines from Little Falls to Cutting all the small stations, three in number, have been burned. The imber all through that section is on fire and the fire is raging furiously to the north of Brainard and Little Falls. As the timber in that section is much heavier than where the fire raged in Pine County, the railroad officials say that nothing can save that whole country but a very heavy rain. The showers yesterday were in places not heavy enough to have any real effect on the fires. The Omaha has reports from Washburn that the fires have been confined thus far.

However, as no rain has fallen there, the Dulath is taking care of about 1,000 refugees and sending supplies to the front as fast as the citizens can collect them. The Omaha road is now in operation except that part of the line between Mason and Ashland. One bridge was barned at Beloft and two nerth of Ashland. All regular trains are now running out to Pine City. A relief special train has been placed on the line between Hinckley and Pine City and makes frequent trips between those two points. Assistant General Nanagar Miller is on the ground assisting in relief work.

Eleven of the settlers, one of them a woman with a baby 3 weeks old, got into an old cance and paddled out into the lake, only to be destroyed by water after escaping from the finmes. SOUGHT REPUGE IN A WELL, DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 4.—Oliver Dubois, a rench-Canadian farmer living on the outskirts of the little village of Sandstone, was among the 250 refugees from that stricken spot. He saved his life by jumping into the bottom of a dry well and was one of the very few who took such a refuge and did not find it a grave already dug. His experience was similar in many ways to that of scores and it a grave already dug. His experience was similar in many ways to that of scores and hundreds of others, but it shows the fearful speed of the flames.

Air, Dubois was a little distance from his home, his gramily happening to be absent. He heard in the south a mightly roaring and thought a cyclone was coming. The blackness of the sky added to this belier and he ran still further from the building to escape any flying sticks that might come from the house. He threw himself down at the root of a stump, his head under a root. Searcely was he on the ground before the awful heat and the fire showed that he contended not with a cyclone but with flame. There was a well a few feet away into which he jumped, it was twelve feet deep, and was dry. Above him he could see the rolling cloud of flames high in the air and then down close to the ground. His position grew stifing, and the air seemed to be so exhausted that he could only brethe by clawing a hole in the damp earth and pressing his face to the side.

As soon as one place got too stifling he would make another little fresh spot. The well filled with smoke and gas, but after a time that seemed hours, but was probably about thirty minutes, he managed to clamber out.

THE ROLL OF DEAD. Bevised List of Those Whose Bodies Have Been Identified.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 4 .- A trustworth correspondent, who has carefully inspected the pathway of the fire about Hinckley, say that the latest verified reports of the num ber of dead do not materially alter former ber of dead do not maierially alter former estimates. In fact, that estimate is proving remarkably exact, considering the confusion of the first day. One element that makes close figuring very difficult is the fact that bodies seen in the woods and along the track are not infrequently reported to two points and sent out from each as among its dead. Then, too, the tendency of the occasion, bad as it is, is to exaggeration. However, eliminating these doubtful elements as far as possible from its approximation, the total is as nearly exact as possible. The number of dead at Hinckiey is placed at 200. The correspondent has actually counted 194 of these, and the margin allowed is about all that is necessary.

Reliable reports from the other towns in Minnesota awept over by the flames makes the total loss of life, closely estimated, 364.

A BACK WITH DEATH.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 4.—Engineer train on the Eastern Minnesota road says that he felt in as serious frame of mind last Saturday afternoon as it would be possible saturday afternoon as it would be possible under any circumstances.

"We were brought face to face with death," be said, "and that is all there was of it. If a man could keep his heat under the trying circumstances of that dreadfal holocaust he need, not fear for his self-control or courage. Soon after leaving Superior at 1:15 p. m. I had to light the headlight owing to the dense smoke which turned day into night. we approached that when we reached that point we would get in the opening and escape the smoke.

"My swrpise was great, therefore, when we found the fire right upon the town. It took but a glance to see that the town was doomed. The wind blew with great velocity and the flames fairly leaped through the air. The people were taken by surprise and were helpless. The coming fire seemed more like a stroke of lightning. Almost in an instant the town was swept by billiows of flames.

We could not pass Hinckley and there was no use to look for orders for communication was cut off. It was one of those cases where men have to make up their mind in an instant what is to be done and to do it without hesitation. Here were hundreds of panic-stricken people who were doomed if they were not instantly rescued. On the other hand the safety or the train and its passengers lay in prompt retreat. To stay and rescue as many as we could was our duty, of course, but the great question, and upon it hundreds of lives hung, was: how long dare we wait?

"Ed Barry was there with engine No. 33 and he and W. D. Campbell, the conductor, were as plucky and brave is lows as ever passed a mile post. We knew we were safe in making time for we could return on No. 23 stine, and as this train had the right of way we knew that no other train would dare to stay on the main line without orders if moving south. We hastily coupled a portion of Campbell's freignt train with the engine abead on to the rear of our train.

The flames-pursued people rushed toward our train and plied into the cars. Some of them were aged and then there was the help-less women and children who had to be helped aboard. We had to shift the position of the train several times to prevent it from catching fire.

"We were all breathing fire as it was. We saw many sights that would have filled us

MEASURES OF RELIEF. Caring for the Injured and Destitute at Pine City.

PINE CITY, Minn., Sept. 4.—So thoroughly have all arrangements been made for the relief of the sufferers around Hinckley that relief of the sufferers around Hinckley that everything moves along without any hitch and the day here is comparatively quiet, although all are busy and the wants of everyone have been well cared for. The people of this little village have responded nobly to the cry for help that came from their suffering neighbors and all that could be done has been done for their relief. hedical supplies, provisions, clothing, bedding and other supplies were poured in from all parts of the State, and sent from here to the place where most needed. The regulars from Fort Snelling have been of great help, as their tents at Hinckley were greatly needed, besides which the policing that they can do is of auvantage. The crowds of curious people are going over the grounds, looking for relics of the horrible disaster, and the systematic search woods.

Gen. Bunker represents the Governor in the relief measures, and H. H. Heart of the State Board of Charity, has been on hand with his counsel and help, which has been invaluable. All the injured have been brought to the hospital and medical supplies were turned over to the medical men in charge, so there was no delay in caring for the injured. Every hall and public building of any sort was used as a hospital and the people joined in nursing, seemed to know no such thing as weariness in their eager desire to relieve the suffering and surviving.

One of the greatest troubles has been with the eyes, the smoke having almost blinded many of the people, and burns were much less frequently met with, the heat was so intended that the eyeball nearly shriveled and nearly every person that passed through the first is wearing smoxed gastes, or else upon the Bulleth road from It. DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 4.—Dispatches from the Upper Peninsula of Michigan show that the rainfall in that region yesterday and last night has effectually put a stop to the forest ares, and will be the means of saving millions of pine and lots of home-steaders' crops and houses. The damage already done, however, is immense; and in many localities total loss can only be avoided by the immediate cutting of timber.

There is considerable evidence that many of the fires were of incendiary origin, set by men who knew that the seorched pine would have to be cut at once, thus giving them work. The fires will also force into the market much pine that was held by non-logging capitalisis for the purpose of speculation. At any rate, handreds of men will be given immediate employment. It is thought nearly every foot of standing pine in Ontonagon County is burned—fully 500,000,000 feet. The Nester estate has lost 90,000,000; Trout Creek Lumber Co., 20,000,000; Diamond Match Co., 150,000,000. The balance is owned by homesteaders at Paynesville and Bruce's Crossing.

A dozen pipes were about the apartment—on the washstand, on the mantel, on the writing table, on the chairs—everywhere that space could be found, there was tobacco and to-bacco everywhere. One thing, there were no flies; the smoke killed them. I am surprised that the smoke did not kill me, too. Mark would not let a servant come into his room. He would strip down his suspenders—his coat and waistcoat of course being off—and walk back and forward in slippers in that little den, and swear and smoke the whole day long. Of course, at times he would work, and while he did work it was like a steam engine at full head.

Trouble in the Choir. From the New Orleans Times-Demosrat.

There was an unusual scehe at St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church Sunday evening. Choirmaster Cardell Hall, with the best singers in the choir, went on a strike. St. Andrew's is one of the highest ritual churches in that city. Rev. Dr. Lutz is the clergyman in charge in the absence of the rector. Right in the midst of the service the choirmaster and singers threw down their hymnals and left the church, to the surprise of the congregation. A few minutes later the clergyman, whose face was red with anger, turned to the congregation and explained that the trouble was caused by his forbidding Albert Dashiell, a chorister, to sing because of misbehavior. In defiance of his orders Dashiell sang, and the clergyman ordered him to leave the chance. Thereupon the choirmaster and other singers left with him. Dr. Lutz declared he would give up the charge at once and telegraph Dr. Dyer, the rector, to return home. He could not stand the irreverence shown by the choristers during service. Choirmaster Hall said he was boss of the choir and would not be dictated to by Dr. Lutz. The other members of the choir backed up the leader. From the New Orleans Times-Demo-

From the Paper World.

A very simple and interesting electrical experiment may be made with a sheet of brown paper, illustrating in a remarkable manner how the most astonishing effects manner how the most astonishing effects may be produced by the simplest means. Take a sheet of coarse brown paper and, holding it before the fire till it is perfectly dry, fold it up into a long strip of about two inches wide. The magnet is now complete. To exhibit its attractive power, cut some strips of writing paper about three inches long and about as wide as one of these lines, then place them upon the table, three or four together. Now take the magnet and draw it briskly under the arm two or three times; its electro-magnetism is instantly developed and becomes apparent when held over the small strips of writing paper, for they fly up from the table towards the paper magnet veritably "by the wings of light-ning."

Special Correspondence SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH. NEW YORK, Aug. 80.—A unique fortune-tel ing shop is run on Eighth avenue by an in-genious eid lady rejoicing in the name of "Coffee Jenny." Her specialty consists in rope," and who was "the only one who has traveled around the world like the late Gent."

At this lady's fate factory prices probably ruled high. At the cheaper store, such as that of "Coffee Jenny," a fairly comfortable future may be secured for 50 cents. Long life, happiness and success in business are guaranteed for a dollar. True love is perhaps the most expensive article to be obtained. To recall an erring husband or a truant bean, the "planets" have generally to be "ruled." It is a cosity job interfering with the habits of the universe. Five dollars is the usual fee. Only first-class society seers who can afford to advertise in Sunday papers undertake to fix up fate to this extent. "Coffee Jenny" merely tells you what is soing to happen. That's all.

Superstition is no respecter of classes or easts. The reporter who visited "Coffee Jenny" stood for a few minutes near a ladder on a crowded sidewalk and counted the people who passed under it. The percentage was very small. Practical, brainy business men, pushing their way in breathless pursuit of "boodle," carefully made a detour; presumedly rather than spoil their duck. Daintily dressed damsets gathered up their skirts and stepped into the gutter, preferring even to soil their dainty little shoes than to incur the unknown but dreaded penalties which Fate inflicts upon those who pass beneath a ladder.

the unknown but dreaded penalties which Fate inflicts upon those who pass beneath a ladder.

Black cats, especially if they are stray eats, are popularly supposed to be great harbingers of luck; hence the feline congregation in "Coffee Jenny's" den. Should a black cat cross one's path or take up quarters in one's home it is a particularly fortunate circumstance. There is a story of a man who dates his present happiness from the day a black cat stalked in at his door, notwithstanding the fact that it caused a quarrel with his mother-in-law, who left him, never to return.

In an obscure corner of this city there is a restaurant bearing the sign of the Black Cat. Many patronize it from superstitions motives. As a sample of the extraordinary luck which attends dinner there, one man states that he very rarely gets a cockroach in his soup.

On the inner door of "Coffee Jenny's" sanctum is a huge horseshoe. Of all lucky tallsmans perhaps equine trotter-cases are held in most esteem. A funny incident occurred in Union Square last week. A Fourth avenue car horse shed an enormous shoe. It had not lain more than a second before a white-aged Adonis and a middle-aged Minerva simultaneously darted at it from opposite sides of the roadway. They met in the middle, and greedity grabbing the prize, both fell on their hands and knees. The water-sprinkling cart had just gone by. The look of withering scorn which each assumed lost most of its dignity by reason of their position.

As a fresh young urchin snatched the shoe As a fresh young urchin snatched the shoe from beneath their noses, and, with a yell bolted with it down Fifteenth street, a bond of sympathy sprang up between the two who were thus left. They went away together, the gentleman gailantly brushing the mud from the lady's attire. Some sort of fate may spring from that horseshoe after all.

An excellent story is going the rounds about the proverbial Cambridge culture. A professor and friend were riding out one afternoon from reind were riding out one afternoon from Boston in an electric car, and were earnestly discussing a rather abstruse question in pedagogies. As may be imagined, the style of conversation was decidedly unintelligible to the average ear, but this did not dismay the conductor, who was standing near. Appreaching, he said very respectfully: "Excuse me, sir, but have you read Prof. Stanley Hall's paper in The Porum this month on "The New Psychology as a Basis of Education?" "Turning around in amazement the professor said. "No, have you?" "Oh! yes sir," answered the conductor, and then proceeded to give a condise outline of the article, which bore directly upon the point under discussion. So ab sorbed was the conductor that he neglected his duty and carried an irate old woman two stopping places beyond her destination. "Great heavens!" exclaimed the professor's friend, as they alighted at Harvard Square, "do all your Cambridge car conductors take-courses in psychology?"

A TRANSACTION IN LAND.

Simple Modes of Transfer in Vegue in the From the London Telegraph.

Land transfer has lost a great deal of the simplicity which characterized the opera-tion in the olden time. The pleasant land of Bosham, in Sussex, once belonged to the Bosham, in Sussex, once should be a controlled by Earl Goodwin, supporter of the last of the Saxon Kings, whose treasury was, unfortunately, too empty to purchase it. He obtained the place by a novel system of transfer. His lordship attended a great ceremony in the Archbishop's cathedral, followed by his retainers, and according to time-honored custom, said to his grace. "Da hish basium," meaning to his grace. "Da hish basium," meaning to his grace. "Da hish basium," meaning to his grace. "Da hish basium of saying "basium," he ingeniously substituted the provincial pronuactation of Bosham. The archbishop gracefully replied, "Do tabl basium," which being interpreted is "I give thee the kiss," which he did. ### ROYAL TEMPERS.

How the Kings and Queens Try to Look Terrible and Dangerous.

From the Chicago Record, Nearly all royal personages are easily put runs contrary to their wishes. They are so much accustomed to have everybody deter to their whims and to have everything give way to their desires that they resent it bit-terly when any hitch occurs. Kind-hearted way to their desires that they resent it bitterly when any hitch occurs. Kind-hearted and the essence of courtesy as is even the Emperor of Austria, I have known him on more than one occasion to lose his temper to such a degree as to use very strong language concerning an officer who had incurred his displeasure, the epithes "schweiz," or hog, being used with much frequency and visor by his apostolic majesty. The Czar, Emperor William, the King of Wurtemberg and Queen Victoria are all prone to outbursts of passionate anger. King Charles of Roumania, when anything occurs to displease him, becomes exceedingly sulky and sour; Queen Christina of Spain, freezing, distant and haught; Queen Emma of Holland exceeding dignified, and King Leopold of Beigium cynical and bitter and occasions rising to a high pitch.

The most passionate of all European moparchs was old King William of Holland, who on one occasion few into such a passion with his Prime Minister that he seized a heavy silver instrand to throw it at the statesman's head. Fortunately the inkstand caught in the heavily embroidered tablecloth, and as the Minister did not budge an inch or manifest the slightest token of alarm, the King had time to get ashamed of himself and set the intstand down without having trained his chief constitutional adviser with it.

He: "Your family portraits are very interesting, Miss Wabash. Who is this distinguished-looking personage?"

n for the Seventh Ward, has pre pared a letter bearing upon the factiona dispute in that ward, but has taken its pub lication under advisement. Mr. Bardol says that after he had taken off his delegation to the State Convention the names of his two intimate friends, John Loesch and Herman Tubesing, and substituted those of John H. Becker and Ed Paulus, at the latter's urgent request Becker and Paulus won over to the support of Becker for Central Committeeman Henry Fehl and Fred Stahl, leaving only Fred Wagner and Louis Gelmar to support Bardol— and this after Becker and Paulus had pledged to support Bardol if put on. Afterward Febi returned to the support of Bardol for the committee, and made amazvit that he was approached by Tony Stuever, a Democratic friend of Becker's, and induced ocratic friend of Becker's, and induced to change his vote. Thus the delegation stood three for Becker and three for Bardol, and on the showing made by Bardol, backed up by Febl's affidavit, the Central Committee seated him. Now, he says, Becker is making threats about what he proposes to do with Bardol's delegation before the City Convention primaries, and Bardol declares that if this sort of thing continues he will publish the facts, as above stated, to the people of the ward, as he has been advised by some of his friends to do.

It is due to Mr. Becker to say that he claims a fair election at the hands of a majority of the members of the delegation, and that the return of Fehl to the standard of Bardol represents a bit of political fine work.

There are a few determined Democrats in the Twelfth Congressional District who will insist on presenting the name of Seth W. Cobb to the convention, leaving with him, if the convention shall nominate, the burden of responsibility for refusal. "If he declines he will be out of politics for all time to come," said one of Mr. Cobb's most persistent supperters this morning. "He has had fit twice by his own request, and now the party calls on him to accept. I don't think sir. Cobb will refuse to run after the nomination has been tendered him by the convention."

The first meeting under the auspices of the Democratic State Committee will be held next Thursday and Friday at Warrensburg. The speakers will include David Overmeyer, Democratic candidate for Governor of Kansas, and Congressmen Champ Clark, R. P. Bland and D. A. De Armond. Mr. Sam Cook, Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, says that speakers of national reputation will begin coming in in about two weeks.

Secretary Will Zeveley of the Democratic State Committee estimates that the utmost sam of money any candidate on the State ticket will be entitled to spend under the provisions of the corrupt practices act will be $3,075, and that $100 will be the limit for legislative candidates in most of the counties and legislative districts in the State. He suggests that candidates may receive the benefit of expenditures by friends of which they have no personal knowledge, and that in this way the letter of the law may be kept, even if the spirit is violated; but believes that the law will have the effect of doing away with a great deal of indiscriminate expenditure by the candidates themselves.

"This," said Col. Hopkins, "cuts of a big "This," said Col. Hopkins, "cuts off a big expense and annihilates an army of deadheads. The money others spend in this way and in the employment of a high saiariled orchestra I put into the show. A great many theatrical managers did not see how a house could be run at 10, 20 and 20 cents prices. They neglected to consider that the some seats are sold two and three times a day. Another big advantage for the manager in the continuous show is that the house does not have to be satisfied with 20, 80 or 40 per cent of the receipts. All the profits go to the house treasury. The vaude ville stars are the most expensive feature. The stock companies are recruited from the ranks of actors and actresses accustomed to the second-class houses. They furnish a good article of comedy and meiodrama."

It is not improbable that the success of the continuous show in St. Louis may result in giving the city a first-class stock company as some of the strong arguments in favor of the continuous show would be equally true of a home organization of superior merit.

A Man Confesses to Having Ruthlessly Killed Nineteen Horses.

ALEXANDRIA, Mo., Sept. 6.—For several months farmers living in the vicinity of the "Brick Church," five miles west of here, have had horses killed, Charles Leuber losing three, Fred Bertram, five, Mrs. Recox, 2; Wm. Huff, 1, and many others. The horses had their throats cut and all killed in the same way. and all killed in the same way.

Saturday night a posse looking for the miscreant caught a man named Jackson in the very act of killing a fine horse. Although some of the most prominent farmers of the county were in the crowd it was with great difficulty that the cooler ones restrained the crowd from stringing Jackson up to a tree. Jackson confessed to having killed nineteen head of horses in all, and would give no reason for the dastardly trick. At present he is in jail at Kanoka, and the feeling against him is very strong.

Texarkana Saloon Men Taken Unawai at Yesterday's Election

TEXARRANA, Ark., Sept. 4 .- The election for county and State officers passed off quietly in Miller County yesterday. The returns are not in, but it is safe to assert that the Demo cratic ticket, both State and county, was elected by a good plurality. Quite unexpectedly to the saloon men, the question of license or no license was sprung on them yesterday morning after voting began, and in Texarkana a strong stand was made or this issue. It is generally conceded this morning that this township was voted dry by a small majority. If this is the case it will consolidate all the saloons of Texarkans on the Texars side of the line.

Gellagher and Murphy had sgreed not to testify against each cother, however, and the cases against both men were dismissed. According to the officers, Gallagher and Murphy have been at outs ever since the primaries were held previous to the last election, at which they supported rival delegations. Gallagher, who is said to live at 2915 Montgomery street, and Murphy, who is said to reside at 2416 Elliot avenue, met in front of Tiemper's saloon, Glasgow savenue and North Market street, last Saturday night and quarreled. Then, the police say, Sallagher went home, got a pistol and returned to the saloon where Murphy had remained standing in front of the bar.

Opening the door, Gallagher is alleged to have poked his pistol through the portal and dired four shots at Murphy, one of which hit him is the right leg, Though temporarily disabled, Murphy was well enough yesterday, the police say, to go to the same corner and have another row with Gallagher. Murphy is alleged to have beaten Gallagher over the head with a rock and to have fired a shot at him.

Mrs. Lizzie Kern, 82 years old and mar-ricd, died at 1424 Blair avenue this morning without medical attendance, and Deputy Coroner Albers has desided to hold a post mortem on the remains, before rentering his verdict. "There is a strong suspicion that the deceased committed suicide. gave the cue to the Deputy Coroner and he learned on inquiry afterward that there had been domestic trouble between Mrs. Kern and her husband, and other causes that might lead her to take her life. Her husband, James C. Kern, was employed until Saturday

HER SON'S STORT.

Henry Moeller, son of the deceased, by her former husband, told the most intelligent story of his mother's death. He said that story of his mother's death. He said that yesterday about 5 p. m. she called him upstairs and told him she was not feeling well and that if anything should happen to tell her Aunt Emma.

"A few moments later," he continued, "she told me to hiss her, which I did. I then sat by the door and about two minutes afterwards she began to kick in bed. I ran to the porch and I told my brother that she was dead. He screamed and the neighbors came. Mamma had been crying all day yesterday on account of my stepfather drinking so hard for the past week. Friday night he came home drunk and she scoided him, and Saturday morning he left home, taking all the money mamma had saved. He also went to the store and got his saiary. Since then we have not seen him. Mamma worried all day yesterday on this account and just before I kissed her she told me not to let anybody tare her to the City Hospital."

MARY BIERSNER'S STORY. Mary Biersner, who lives adjoining the de-ceased, testified that she found Mrs. Kern ceased, testified that she found Mrs. Kern apparently in cramps when she got into the room. "I wanted to help her, but she said: 'Go away. Let me alone.' I sent for a physician, but she would take no medicine. While in the room I heard her cry out: 'My God, my God, he has taken all my money and he has gone and I am going, too. I am going to die.' A few minutes later she did die."

Deceased was the mother of two children by her former husband. Her remains will be buried by her parents, who are still living.

Breckinridge among the Kentucky women insists that the gallant Colonel should be returned to Congress because Miss Pollard is not a representative woman of Kentucky and it would be a shame to let a plebelan woman of her kind drag down such a brilliant Kentuckian. It is something new in nonor and morality to learn that a brilliant man is not degraded by association with a common woman of the baser sort, but can only be dragged down by a repreentative woman of blue blood and high reeding.

THE FALL PESTIVITIES. When our autumn guests roll into the alatial Union Station they will see only he beginning—the beautiful gate, so to peak-of new attractions which the people of St. Louis have prepared for their entertainment.

There will be no reason to regret the ence of street illuminations because this has given both spur and opportunity for the preparation of more novel and substantial attractions. In every branch of the Fall festivities, special and energetic effort has been made to provide not only new entertainment, but better entertainment, than has ever been given before.

The doors of the Exposition will be thrown open to-morrow with a brilliant inaugural programme. Manager Galennie stakes his reputation on the promise that the displays in every department will be the finest in the history of this remarkably uccessful institution. With a host of novelties, some of the choicest displays of the World's Fair will be seen to better advantage than in the vast aggregation of the White City. Special attention has been given to the Art Department, where a special display of art works will be shown. No ingenuity and expense have been spared to perfect the displays in the other departments. In Grand Music Hall it is sufficient to say that Souss and his magnificent band will be the central attraction during the entire season. The programmes will be varied every night. Visitors to the old Fair will hardly recognize the new Fair, so many attractive changes will be introduced. Chief among them will be the reproduction of the World's Fair "Midway" with the great variety of unique attractions which made it so popular. Every department will be every minute with rare enjoyment.

A novel feature in street pageants will be the day parade of King Hotu and his Funny Fellows, who promise to make Sept. 29 a day of hilarity by their amusing concelts. The climax of the season as usual will be the brilliant pageant and ball of the Veiled Prophets.

The theaters announce attractive offerings during the season, and with such a varied list of entertainments St. Louis welcomes her guests with confidence that they will be richly repaid.

"SALT" HIM.

The New York organ of the plutocratio wing of the Democratic party calls upon the "sincere and uncorrupted Democracy of the country" to obtain from all candidates for Congress this fall explicit statements of their attitude toward the income

It suggests that a series of questions the truit are being placed on board a whether he is for or against the income tax and if for, whether he favors its extension or if against, he favors its repeal should he be put to each candidate.

The suggestion is excellent. Every can lidate should be forced to place himself on record in this important question, and when the "sincere and uncorrupted Democracy" find one against the income tax 'salt'' him. He is un-Democratic.

A GREAT ACTOR'S DANGER.

The world has been so pleased and surprised with the development of Prof. John L. Sullivan's histrionic powers that until he burst upon it yesterday with an answer to Mme. Janauschek and Richard Mansfield, it did not dream that he also possessed a large critical capacity. It is true there was a rumor, some months ago, that he had declared Shakspeare to be "no good," but no one was quite prepared to see him walk into his noted contemporarles of the stage and do them up in the language of criticism.

It is unquestionably a fact that the stage has been elevated higher than the level of many of us, and others have seen this as well as Prof. Sullivan, but they have not had the boldness to declare it. These words of Prof. Sullivan should be pasted up in every Thespian temple: "It's a sure thing that a play with a good moral that hits a man where he lives will win a finish fight." Booth's genius and experience never found utterance in anything clearer than this, yet there are still persons who magine that Booth knew more of the frame than Sullivan knows. Prof. Sullivan's advice to young men who want to be actors is golden. first thing they must do," he says, "is to be right on their English." NARROW OFFICIALISM.

There is a manifest disposition to let the emarkable English of Dr. Homan's order o shut out representatives of the press rom hospital news, overshadow and obsoure the no less remarkable logic embodled in the Health Board's resolution.

The order to keep the news out of the daily papers is based upon the ground of tender regard for mental feelings of the unfortunates whose anatomies supply material for the surgeon's knife and the science of the pillmakers. But this tenderness does not prevent free permission to dish up descriptions of cases and carvings for the medical journals. All the secrets of the "innards" of the poor, which must be kept sacred from the pencils of the daily press reporter, may be laid open with elaborate exactness in the columns of the docors' own journal.

This evident inconsistency and discrimination between news in the daily press and news in the periodical journals are suggestive. They seem to indicate that the main point is not so much the prevention of publication as the selection of readers, not so much the protection of the carved as the limitation of the carver, not so much charitable delicacy as profes sional jealousy.

The whole thing looks like an attempt to run the hospitals of St. Louis on a ridiculously small and narrow policy.

Times have been reported as especially pard in Chicago, yet we read in the Record: "Labor day, 1894, finds the organizations of workingmen in Chicago in better condition than they ever were before. While the year has been fraught with trials for all who work for a living the unions have managed to maintain their former positions and mem berships and to increase in the latter all have secured an increase in wages. In no instance have wages been reduced where the trades were fully organized." If times have nproved in Chicago the rest of the country may well feel encouraged. The presperit and solidity of St. Louis is to be desired in every American city.

Considering the frequent deaths from a dis ease supposed to be hydrophobia it is reassur ing to read once more the opinion of physi clans that there is no such disorder and that the New York S. P. C. A. has found but one rabid dog in twenty-eight years. The convulsions will now have nobody but himself to blame, and the Pasteur hospital can close its doors.

"SAID to be one of the largest and finest is the country," is the way one of those gloomy sheets on the margin of the Great Dismal Lake speaks of our unparalleled new Union Station. "One of the largest," in-deed, and "said to be!" Verily, there is no truth in Chicago.

Francis vs. Tolston

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch: "There are many qualities that go toward making a good citizen, but patriotism is un-questionably the sublimest; and closely akin o it-in fact, a constituent element thereof to it—in fact, a constituent element thereof—is local pride."

Ex-Gov. Francis is a politician, and the expressions of politicians in public speeches are, of course, not taken seriously, but this extract from his address at the opening of the new Union Station is interesting as reflecting a popular delusion which has been very thoroughly punctured by Toistoi in his latest book—"Ohristianity and Pat lotism"—the purpose of which is to prove that "patriotism is 'an ignoble and unworthy sentiment, in condict with the spirit and teachings of Ohristianity and the efficient cause of nearly all wars."

The word patriotism is the concrete expression of traits and motives which under other designations are universally exercited—Frational Digotry, pride, boast-fulness, vain-giorious exploit, denial of merit in others. It is of a kind with partisanship in politics and sectarianism in religion. It is the spirit which maintains that our cabbages are batter than any other cabbages in the wide world, simply because they are our cabbages. And local pride is the misshapen offspring of patriotism.

Will you kindly allow me space in you paper for a few words in regard to the lynching of the six negroes near Willington. Tenn., a few days ago. Now, i was raised within three miles of where the lynching occurred, and liknow that there is not a more peaceable or law abiding commanity in the United States, or anywhere cles, and only in a deparate case would they lake the law into their own hands. It is admitted that the negroes had hurst thirty-two harms and there was any doubt as to who ware like suiter parties, it seems to me that it is a "goign at terror" for paper for a few words in regard to the

the white people instead of the negroes. I move from experience that the white people in that section searcely dare order their own property vacated by negroes, for when they do so they are liable to have their wells polysoned, houses buyned, cattle killed, etc. I could cite a hundred cases in which these things have been done, but of what use would it be? These Northerners could never be sonvinced that the "poor" negroes are not terribly abused. So I simply write this because it happens to be my native place which is maligned this time.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 .- As the last burst of harmony from his superb band resounded through the Manhattan Beach Music Amphitheater last night John Phillip Sousa laid down his baton and bowed his acknowledgements of enthusiastic applause of the immense audience, flushed with pride at the enthusiasm which greeted him, and the knowledge that he had conducted the most successful season, artistically and financially, that Manhattan Beach had known in the seventeen years of its existence. All the financial records made by Gilmore's band in its best season have been wiped out by Sousa, and the figures of the receipts placed way above high water-mark.

That Sousa's efforts and the enormous popularity of the director, the band and Sousa's own compositions are appreciated by the management of the beach was evidenced this afternoon when Sousa was in velgled into a private parior in the notel and presented with a magnificent diamond souvenir for the season of 1894. cross-bar, bearing the title of "The March King." It is suitably inscribed, and is one of the costilest medals ever made.

Sousa was taken completely by surprise and blushed like a schoolboy with pleasure, but managed to convey his thanks in suitable terms.

Sousa's Band left for St. Louis this morning by special train on the Pennsylvania Railroad at 9 o'clock. They are due tomorrow afternoon, so there will be no delay in commeacing the concert at the Exposition on Wednesday evening, as there was last year. The great band has been playing now uninterruptedly for thirty-five weeks, every day, and is beyond question the best drilled musical organization in the world. Its playing is as periect and finished as only could result from thorough training under a master-hand. There have been but few changes in the organization since it last delighted the Exposition patrons, and such changes as have been made materially improve its personnel. The favorite soloists, Bode, cornet; Raffayolo, euphonium; Pryor, trombone; Stengler, clarlonet; Messenger, obee, are all retained. There is a new saxaphone soloist in Jean Moersmann, a young Belgian, who is considered the first performer on his instrument in the world.

Sousa will have lots of novelties for the Exposition audiences. The great additions that have been made to the band during the past year are such as will excite popular interest. He also has all the latest European successes both in classics and lighter veins, too numerous to specify. Of encores pieces, for which he is so famous, Sousa has an immense repertoire of all classes, most prominent among which are probably his new Liberty Bell and Manhattan Beach marches, which are the great musical popular successes of the year. Sousa will be accompanied to St. Louis by his charming wife and their two daughters. They will be located at the Grand Avenue Hotel. All the members of the party are looking forward with much pleasurable anticipation to their .St. Louis season.

FROM THE CHRISTIAN STANDPOINT.

The Idea That There Is Anything Woble in Destroying Oseself Combatted-Life Never Without Utility-Its Real End.

Rev. F. M. Kielty, the pastor of the Holy Angels' Church, has given the recent dision provoked by Ingersoll's published views on suicide much thought and writer to the Post-Disparch on the subject as

"So far as I have read other men's writings on this subject. I have not been able to discover any new line of argument for or against self-murder. The arguments of the Pagan are the same now as when Cato laid violent hands on himself. So also are those of the Christian moralist the same.

It seems then a hopeless task to say anything new upon a theme so well-worn. Few, indeed, are the pens that can throw a creative novelty about such a theme, yet anyone may again interweave the well-used threads of older intellectual fabrics into new combinations. The old question, is it wrong to take one's own life into one's own hands, is ever again and again repeated in new forms under the influence of the ideas and emotional tendencies of successive generations and they therefore continually need correponding answers.

The advocates of suicide have now adopted.

destiny—that, nothing can make life useless to us.

Life is never without an adequate aim, never without utility. Let a man be ever so afflicted, he can yet unite his will in submission to his Maker's, and abound in mental acts of goodwill towards his fellowmen. The real end of life is truly and tersely expressed in what the Christian child is taught at the commencement of his catechism. Question. "Why did God make man?" Answer. "To Know Him, love Him, and serve Him in this world, and to be happy with Him for ever in the next." In this is contained, the highest speculation and the deepest philosophy. In considering this answer, the reader should bear in mind, that here God and goodness are considered as one and the same. F. M. KELLTY.

seuthanssia, 'as now advocated by what disclared and consequently calls the school of 'Revited Hayanism,' to cut short the sufferings of profracted disease or senile imbedility. For one will deny that he did not create himself. His life, then, must have been bestowed on him by some one not himself, and consequently he cannot be his ownimaster, any more than he can be his ownimaster, any more than he can be his ownimaster, and therefore, does not own himself, and may not destroy nimself. Now, to take que's own life is to usurp the dominion of him who gave it. It is wronging the author of life and death. The study of the philosophy of suicide has especial interest for this reason, among others, that few points could be named which so sharply and decisively discriminate from each other in their first principles, the whole pagan and Ubristian conception of virtue. Many acceptions, I own, have to be made on the state of the state of

into a living faith, the unrecognized influence of Christian doctrine was too strong to permit a return to this portion of the old Roman morelity. Self-murder was condemned, as well on the Platonic principle of obedience to the Delty, as because it involved a perturbation, and therefore defilement, of the soul at the very time of its departure to another life.

THE CHRISTIAN STANDARD.

I pass now from the pagan to the Christian standard of virtue, and nowhere will a more remarkable illustration of it be found than in the very different estimates of this crime. The Platonic argument, as we have seen, say that men may not desert the post assigned to them by the Delty, and the consideration suggested by Plutarch, that it is nobler to endure suffering than fly from it, were indorsed and reinforced with fresh and more awful sanctions by the church it has been shrewdly remarked by Mme. Stael, "That though there are crimes of a darker hue than suicide, yet there is none other by which man seems so entirely to renounce the protection of God." But more than this, the immensely developed sense of personal responsibility, so little was it realized in the heathen world, and the result was a verdict was reached the ciscovery of a "polson" and the result was a verdict was reached discovery of a "polson" and the result was a verdict was reached of suicide. This verdict was reached of suicide. This verdict was reached through the discovery of a "polson" and the result was a verdict was reached through the discovery of a "polson" and the result was a verdict was reached through the discovery of a "polson". This was found in a two verdict was reached through the discovery of a "polson". This was found in ersult was a verdict was reached through the discovery of a "polson" and the result was a verdict of suicide. This verdict was reached the discovery of a "polson" and the result was a verdict of suicide. This verdict was reached through the discovery of a "polson" and the result was a verdict of suicide. This verdict was reached signed to them by the Deity, and the consideration suggested by Plutarch, that it is nobier to endure suffering than fly from it, were indorsed and reinforced with fresh and more awful sanctions by the church. It has been shrewdly remarked by Mme. Stael, "That though there are crimes of a darker hue than suicide, yet there is none other by which man seems so entirely to renounce the protection of God." But more than this, the immensely developed sense of personal responsibility, so little was it realized in the heathen world, and of the sacredness of life tended to deepen the horror of what was now looked upon as only one form of marder, and too often at the most terrible form, because, from the nature of the case, it left no room for repentance. Then, again, for the mere brave endurance of pain as an inevitable evil was substituted the new idea of suffering as the just penalty of sin and a sort of reparation for it, and as having, in connection with the Christian belief in the redemption a salutary and sanctifying power. Thus was explained the great Stole apology for suicide to be not only irreverent, but based on an essentially false idea of virtue. There is not much difficulty mesons the unlawfulness of self-murder for ordinary cases. If men were to kill themselves upon every slight disappointment the world could not go on. It is the hard cases where men are apt to lay violent hands on themselves, that put the moralist on his mettle to restrain them by reasons. Of the ordinary suicide we find scarcely a trace in the early and medieval funch, though it occasionally reappeared in heretical sects, as among the Donatists Circumcellions of the fourth century.

The church to fortify her teachings that every volantary suicide is a suicide of the soul, which can in no way be explated, and it is in this that itse the horror of this sin, enforced her teaching by stringent enactments to the self-murderer, and no masses were allowed to be offered for his soul, his property was connicated and his body was subjected to va bers of the City Council. A meeting will be held to-day by the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Protective Association to take final steps in the matter. The petitions have aiready been prepared. The charges will be maifeasance in office.

forget that Cato's friends, also enlightened men, as well as himself, pradently tried to dissueds him from such an act jadging it to be that of a feeble, rather than a strong mind, and dietated not by honorable feeling anticipating shame, but by weakness shrank from hardship. These advocates of self-murder and admirers of Cato are evidently unmindful of the fact that Cato condemns himself by the advice he gave his son. For if it was a disgrace for simself to live under Cassar's rule, why did he agra-him to trust absolutely to Casar's generosity? Why did he not pursuade him to die along with himself? A modern writer of weight says that self-murder almost always aprings from partial inaanity, or from the last extremity of despair. This it is said, is saying a good deal more than is warranted by recorded facts, but this is neither the time nor the place to make any inquiry into that statement. But it may be remarked that the advance of lax views of religion has materially weakened the dichlef counteracting influence, the restless ness and flerce competitive spirit of the day are eminently unfavorable to the formation of habits of patient resignation and contentment, and that passion for notoriety which the great publicity of modern life has so greatly intensified, is certainly not without its effect on feebler and more frivolous class of minds. The only effective remedy against the disease of self-murder is to recall our relation to our maker, who gave us life, and slice our relations to our fellow-creatures.
The only corrective to suicidal tendencies is

It has been a hard life, that of Mrs. Patrick Duffy, mother of Frances Duffy, the young woman killed by falling through the skylight at the Union Station Sunday afternoon, and her share of misfortune has been great.

At the time the accident occurred by which Frances was killed there was present at the station Mrs. E. Something got into her eye, which became inflamed, grew worse, and she finally lost the sight of it. This was so long ago, however, that she has become accustomed to it, and does not complain. Mr. Duffy was a teamster. Sixteen years ago he was driving for the Park Mills, and one day drove up in front of the mill where the steam from the eugine was escaping with a loud hiss. The horses became frightened, ran away and Mr. Duffy was thrown from the wagon and his neck broken.

was escaping with a loud hiss. The horses became frightened, ran away and Mr. Duffy was thrown from the wagon and his neck broken.

The next bad luck come to Mrs. Duffy about five years ago. Her son, Edward, next to the oldest, went out to the theater one night and shortly after midnight he was shot by a policeman. It appears that, with some companions, he was seen around the rear of a saloon at the corner of Twelfth and Pine and seemed to be breaking in. When an officer came up the young men ran and he fired, which resulted in the killing of young Duffy.

A little over a year ago Mrs. Duffy was getting supper one evening, when turning suddenly, she slipped, and endeavoring to save herself from the fall, broke her wrist. The bone was set at the infirmary, but it was a bad jou, and now Mrs. Duffy's arm is crooked and practically useless, as she cannot close her left hand.

The last blow was the death of her daughter Frances. Two of the boys had been out of work so long that the family is greatly in want of many things. When Frances got the place at the Union station she was greatly pleased, as she, too, had been out of work for some months. "Hut I'll take care of you now, mother, "she said a few days ago when her mother was compaining of how many things she needed. So she went to work and to-day lies a corpse in the front room on the second floor of 1604 Market.

"It was a terrible death to die." said Mrs. Duffy to the Post-Disparator reporter. "The blow maist have been an awful one, and the poor gir's head all cracked open. It's just about sixteen years ago since her father was brought in to me in the same way. He was a good man, rest his soul, and it's a hard time I've had since he died. If it wasn't for Willie, I don't know what I'd do. Jimmie has only just gone to work and John has nothing to do. "She was so glad to get to work, too," said Mrs. Duffy again referring to her daughter, "and new she's gone. While there one of his fits came upon him, and as he dashed blindly and frothing at the mouth through their yard the Glesons became alarmed, not being familiar with the canine's maiady. In order to scare the brute of their premises the Glesons hurled all kings of missies, including some articles of household furnishing at him. Fiedler heard the noise and became very angry at his neighbors, it is alleged, that out of sympathy for his dog, he crossed over to the premises of his neighbor, and as soon as he entered the house he began to hurl pleces of furniture and other objects of a detachable nature at the alleged assaliants of his pet, Louis, Clara, Wilhelmina and Hattle Gleson and Luiu Lutz happened to be in the house, and they were compelled to retreat from the shower of incongruous missiles which, it is said, Fiedler hurled.

After they had left the latter in possession of the castle Fiedler and his dog returned to their home and all was peaceful again.

FOUR STORIES.

New York, Sept. 4 .- Ten thousand frantic people early this morning saw two children dropped four stories by their mother, who took this chance to save them from flames which were leaping for them on four sides. The children were caught, and were none the worse for the quick trip. The mother was rescued just in time by firemen.

The fire was in a tenement building on Fifty-third street. Mrs. Julia Donohue and her two children, Julia, 4 years of age, and Hubert, aged 2 years, were asleep in their rooms on the fourth floor. They were not aroused until the fames had cut off all escape save by the window. In the meantime the thousands who had gathered in the streets made it almost impossible for the firemen to break through with their apparatus. When Mrs. Donohoe reached the window she saw that it would take almost a miracle for the firemen to raise their ladders in time to save her children. Below a cloth awning was down, and she took the chance of dropping her little ones upon this. Giving each what she thought would be her last kiss she dropped first Julia and then Hubert. The awning was strong enough to stand the strain, and as the children rolled off they were caught by those whose hearts had almost stopped beating when they were dropped. The fire was in a tenement building on dropped.

Just as the flames burst into the room in which Mrs. Donohue was a ladder was raised and she was taken to the ground.

tsightedness of the League mag tee is in a great measure responsible for elack of interest in the game so general roughout the West, Year after year the estern clubs have been required to make first long trip with the inevitable result ton their return home they have that on their return home they have lost all value as drawing cards simply because they have dropped out of the race. The consequences are that there has been small and unsatisfactory attendance at the games on the Eastern clubs' visite to this section. The patronage has been flatteringst the opening games in the West. Base ball has such a strong foethold in the East that it would make but little difference in the receipts whether the games between the sections were played in one mouth or the next. Suppose that the Browns instead of having been scheduled to play in the Eastern rivals at Sportsman's Park, Some suthuslasts claimed they would be among the leaders. The interest in the game and in the Browns was general. Then came the first Eastern trip with its disasters. On their return at Louisans declined to pay to see their pets take another dose of the medicine they had received in the East. There can be but little doubt Miller's men would have won a much larger percentage of these games had they been played at home instead of abroad. layed at home instead of abroad.

It is an axiom in base ball that a club, however strong, does well to make a stand-off on a long trip. Thousands, who, disgusted at the exhibition of the Browns in the East after they left Philadelphia, stayed at home, would have done business at the box office at Sportsman's Park. ### THEY HAVE SEPARATED.

'Lucky" Baldwin Falls Out With Bie Trainer McDaniel.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 4.—Trainer Henry McDaniel and Millionaire "Lacky" Baldwin have agreed to issparate, and the former has turned over Rey El Santa Anita and the rest of the California turfman's horses to Bill Brien. The latter, though a successful trainer, has an unsavory reputation. Brien is the man who was ruled off for dosing Baiston at Saratoga some years ago.

Jockey Willie Martin has arrived from the East with G. H. Smith's 56,000 purchase, Chant, and the Kentucky derby winner will race here the rest of the season.

Chant, and the Kentucky derby winner will race here the rest of the season.

Henry McDaniel, who has just left the employ of the California millionaire turfman, 'Lucky' Baidwin, is one of the most successful trainers on the Western circuit. Last year he handled the Cushing & Orth string, and prepared Boundiess for his victory in the $50,000 American Derby. This year he duplicated the performance with Baidwin's 5-year-old, Rey El Santa Anita. When McDaniel was with Cushing & Orth. Thei stable included besides floundiess, those two other well-known performers. Lockout and Calhoun. Last spring a year ago this trio was thought to include the best-year-olds on the Western circuit. From Little Rock is pto Chicago McDaniel won all kinds of stakes and derbies with the trio. No one knew which was the best horse in the bunch. In the American derby the regular stable jockey, Kunze, had the mount on Cushing's favorite, Lockout, while "Sanpper" Garrison was secured at the last moment to ride Boundiess, who was most fancied by "CDaniel. The success of Boundiess proved how correct the trainer was when he pronounced the son of Harry O'Fallon to be the best of the trio. Lockout turned out afterwards to be an ugly, sulking, worthless brute, while Calhoun falled to realize expectations and is now running in selling races. Boundiess broke down and is now in the stud down in Kentucky. AcDaniel's success with filey El Santa anita in the derby this season, was as big a surprise to the public as when he put Boundiess over the plate in the same event last year.

In a recent chat Pierre Lorillard said in connection with his proposed plan to race in England as soon as I can make a rangements to do so. I have made a number of good English handicap horses which I shall purchase on the sther side after my arrival. I shall have a comfortable income, I do not know of any pleasanter way of enjoying it than in racing in England. has caused, and now that she has been accepted—bloomers and all—as a product of the Nineteenth Century, speculation is busy in fixing her status for the futura. A hasty and bashful glance at the situation will convince any one that the bicycle sir in trousers will soon be as plential as the male bicycle as a means of recreation and exercise. Until recently for a woman to ride a wheel was a sign of superior courage. She was not only sure to be conspicuous, but the masculine interest in her angles and in the play of her skirts inevitably distracted and

BICYCLE GIRL'S STATUS.

The dressmakers have come to her aid and have fashloned a bicycle costume which leaves the limbs free without exposing their shapeliness. What was for a long time regarded as an exclusively manly sport is now rapidly becoming womanly, and thus it happens that the up-to-date St. Louis girl talks mounts her wheel to improve her health and amuse herself and "not to show her legs."

The important question "Do women look ugly and ungainly on a bicycle?" seems to be conclusively settled by their persistence in riding for no woman would purposely place herself in a situation where she would appear to disadvantage. Homeliness is an awful charge to lay at a

It is one of the inspiring sights on the boulevard to see a group of pretty women on their wheels. The bicycle itself, one of the most graceful of moving things, is much more so with a comely society belie astride of it. A man might be pardoned if he compared it to the poetry of motion.

TEMPTATION OF THE DEVIL.

Who can predict the fate of the woman who done bloomers and becomes a bikist? Some say that the wheel is a wile of Satan with which to allure the fair sex. The prim, demure little woman who resists temptation in all other forms, say the wiseacres, falls when she mounts the safety. She gradually falls into the ways of mea as her garb approaches the male attire. The cigarette, the cigar, the jag, the road-hoase, and then destruction mark her course. A Satan's safety proves her destruction. If this should be an exaggeration, what of the pictorial illustrations which portray the evolution of the bike girl from skirts and corsets through the various stages of blonses and bloomers to tights?

With each remove from womanliness, she loses that charm which attracts and holds men until she develops into a strap-shouldered, man-aping entity, unsexed and unmable.
Who can say that our artist has not developed the state of the st

Who can say that our artist has not depleted the daily obtings of the young ladies of the select institutions of learning within a decade! Even Miss Prim, the attenuated principal, 'has a wheel' and, though handicapped by nature, manages to propel it. The result of the bicycle craze is a matter of conjecture as well as alarm. It may make the gentler sex more mannish, but it will only be by a sacrifice of their chief charm—their womanilness.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Funeral of Mrs. Stephens-City Court Election-Belleville News.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Stephens, wife of the Mayor of East St. Louis, took place this afternoon. Religious services were performed at 2 o'clock at the family residance on Collinsville avenue by Rev. W. H. Tomius of St. Mary's Mission, and the remains were interred a and the remains were interred a Mt. Carmel Cemetary. The funeral was very largely attended and the floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. A large tribute in the form of twin broken columns, the offering of the City Council, was exceptionally fine. Other tributes were presented by the Fire Department, Police Department and the city officials. The pail-bearers were Thomas H. White, J. T. Daniels, John Niemes, D. C. Marsh, J. P. It Is Bitterly Waged on Suburban AF enne and the Mayor Appealed To.

Mrs. Eves and Mrs. Johnson, two ladies living on Suburban avenue, called at Mayor Walbridge's office this morning and asked him to interfere in the war that is now in progress in that locality because one of the residents named Clark tapped a private water main without getting permission to do so.

There is no city water main on that part of Suburban avenue, and the owner of a row of Ouses built a private water main for the accommodation of his tenants some time ago, since that time Henry Clark built a house across the street and bought from the proprietor of the private main the right to tap the private main. Afterward Clark built another house and tapped the pipe ieading from the private main to the first house that he had built without getting the privilege of the owner of the main, and, it is said, without getting permission from the city authorities to make the excavation. The other residents who were using the private main declared that the action of Mr. Clark in tapping his pipeleading from the main to his house made tue pressure so low that the water could not be obtained from the private main. Considerable discussion followed and Mr. Clark was finally summoned to appear in the police court. Mayor Walbridge declined to interfere.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 .- If the Whisky Trust inends to oppose the collection of the increase revenue tax on whisky no intimation has lector Mize says that he heard a rumor that the whisky men would go into the courts and make an effort to have the new tariff law, insofar as it relates to the tax on whisky, declared unconstitutional. The rumor was brought from Peoria by some of Mr. Mize's deputies. "Nothing has been heard by this office," said the Collector, "to indicate that the distillers will oppose the tax. It is difficult to see what they could gain by having the law declared invalid. On the other hand, should the law fail, they would lose the extension of the bonded period from three to eight years." lector Mize says that he heard a rumor that

PLAYING CARDS STAMPS.

The case of Dr. Frank Kirsch, charged ions of the new playing cards revenue with assaulting Justice James white, is on stamps, made necessary by the tariff bill have been printed in the last two weeks This playing card tax is a revival of the old war taxes and is a feature of the new revenue act which is making much work for war taxes and is a reature of the new revenue act which is making much work for the officials. Every pack of playing cards offiered for sale, whether at the manufacturers, the wholesale dealers or the retailers, must have a stamp affixed under penalty of a heavy line for selling unstamped cards. Consequently the collectors are obliged to look over the stocks of all stores in their districts where cards are likely to be kept and see that every pack pays a revenue of reents to the Government. After the stocks now on hand at the retailers have been sold out it will be easier to collect this tax, because all cards can then be stamped in the first place at the manufacturers' establishment. Two varieties of the stamps are being printed, a red stamp, which besides the usual heading and denomination bears the words. "On hand Aug. — '94," and a blue one for regular use, printed "series of 1894." The designs are very simple, consisting of a hand of cards besides the inscriptions.

A change in the plates for all the internal revenue stamps is being made by the bureau to conform to the new law. The words, "Series of '94' will be displayed on all the revenue stamps hereafter. Those already in stock of the last series will not be wasted, but will have the same words stamped across the face or will be surcharged, as the term is.

A representative of the Post-Disparch saw Hinten at the jail to-day and he gives the following version of the affair:

"On Friday night before the killing we had in the house by a back window. The first dis-turbance was about 10 o'clock and between turbance was about 10 o'clock and between a and 4 in the morning we were aroused again. The house fronts south and contains two rooms. My wife, my two little girls and myself occupy the front room and my sister, Violet, was occupying the north room. The north room has a window about three and a half feet from the ground. A summer kitchen is located so that its south ead laps the north end of the main house, leaving a passageway five or fix feet wide between them. The west window of the summer kitchen is about 100 yards from the main house, so that you can readily see any one at the north of the north line of the main house, so that you can readily see any one at the north of the north line of the main house, so that you can readily see any one at the north of the north line of the bouse, and I was determined to find out who it was. Saturday night I made a pallet on the floor in the summer kitchen near the window. I went to the zitchen about 8 o'clock, taking with me a 33-caliber rife. The window sash was raised so I could put the gun through if I found it necessary to shoot.

"About 10:15 I heard a noise at the north north window a dry goods box about three feet square was sitting, and another theory is that he was laying on his right side, tap-ping on the window, when he was shot.

No. 8, to the Trade and Labor Union, have been withdrawn by the printers for their action in the political conference held aug. 14. Resolutions were passed by the Typographical Union stating that that body gave its members the widest latitude of individual opinion in matters political, religious or social and repudiating the action of the delegates, which, it was stated, placed the printers in a false light before the public and organised labor by making it appear that their anion was to be a participant in politics.

In accordance with the resolutions Frank Hill and John Quan were selected as delegates to the State Convention to be held shortly at Kansas City. Sheridan Webster was the cause of trouble once befor between the Typographical Union ar Trades and Labor Union, holding the his utterances were too socialistic and no indersed by this union. The print wanted to withdraw him as their delegate the Trades and Labor Union, holding the his utterances were too socialistic and no indersed by this union. The Trades and Labor Union insisted that he should be allowed to remain.

It was believed that the withdrawal of these delegates might cause another rupture, in view of the fact that the previous trouble between the Trades and Labor Union and the Typographical Union was due to a similar withdrawal. President Hoefer of the Trades and Labor Union has a perfect right to change its delegates at any time. The previous reputer was caused, he says, because cartain members of the Typographical Union had and the action taken at that time was not regular. When the Trades and Labor Union sent a committee to investigate the Typographical Union refused to admit the committee and hence the final withdrawal then of the Typographical Union from the general organization.

Dancing.

"I began to work at the conditions of dia mond making when I was 17, and now I am 31, It seemed to me that it might take all the thought and energies of a man for ten years, or twenty years, but even if it did the game was still worth the candle. Suppose one to have at last just hit the right trick, before the secret got out and diamonds be came as common as coal, one might realize

He paused and looked for my sympathy His eyes shone hungrily. "To think," said be, "that I am on the verge of it all, and here!"

"I had," he proceeded, "about a thouery. And you see it was important that if I really meant to make a pile. people should not know it was an artificial process and capable of turning out diamonds by the ton. So I had to work all alone. At first I had a little labore. it was a bit thought of them were out.

To run out I had to conduct my experiments in a wretched unfurnished room in Kentish for Town, where I sieps at last on a straw mature of the for among all my ap-

"Rather risky," said I. "Yes. It burst, and smashed all my win dows and a lot of apparatus; but I got a kind of diamond powder nevertheless. Following out the problem of getting a big pressure upon the moiton mixture from which the things were to crystallize, I hit upon some researches of Daubree's at the Paris Laboratorie des Poudres et Saltpetres. He exploded dynamite in a tigatly acrawad steel cylinder. thought, exed out by a little teaching, would lied my researches going. A year or two was spent in study, at Berlin chiefly, and then I continued on my own account. The trouble was the secrecy. You see, if once I had let out what I was doing, other men would have been spurred on by my belief in the practicability of the idea; and I do not pretend to be such a genius ass to have been spur of coming out for a walk.

"It was in the interest of science," he said, ultimately. "There was a coster-monger family on the floor below, a benging-letter writer in the room behind mine, and two flower women were up-stairs. Perhaps it was a bit thoughtless. But possibly some and I found out a receiver of stolen goods, and he simply stuck to the one I gave him and told me to prosecute if I wanted it back. I am going about now with several hundred thousand pounds' worth of diamonds round hard-driven."

He looked into my eye.
"It would be madness," said I, "for me to buy a diamond under the circumstances.

Besides, I do not carry hundreds of pounds about in my pocket. Yet I more than, half believe your story. I will, if you like, do this: Come to my office to-morrow"—
"You think I am a thief," said he keenly.

"Somehow I am assured that you are no thief. Here is my card. Take that, anyhow.

"Taink better of it and come," said I,
He shook his head doubtfully. "I will pay back your half-crown with interest some day—such interest as will amase you," said
be. "Anyhow, you will keep the secret?
Don't follow ms."
He crossed the road and went into the darkness toward the little steps under the archway leading into Essex street, and I let him go. And that was the last I ever saw of him.

Yet I am a poor man, a hundred pounds would leave a visible gap in my fortune, and no same man would buy a diamond by gaslight from a ragged tramp on his personal warranty only. Still, a diamond that size conjured up a vision of many thou-sands of pounds. Then, thought I, such a stone could scarcely exist without being mentioned in every book on gems, and again I called to mind the stories of light-fingered Kaffirs and contraband at the Cape. I put the question of purchase on one side.

"How did you get it?" said I.

"I made it." I had heard something of Moissan, but I knew his artificial diamonds were very small. I shook my head,

When brought to the station, in addition to the hatchet Fleming had when arrested, a very good-looking look-pick was found in his poeter. There was evidence on the tool-house door showing that an effort was made to force the staple and the handle of Fleming's hatchet fitted the impression in the wood perfectly. Fleming asserted that he was doing no harm. The hatchet, he claims, was given him to work with, and the lock-pick he claims to have found. ### ALCOHOL IN THE ARTS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 4 .- No questions now pending before the Treasury Department are receiving so much attention from on 61 of the new tariff bill which exempt from internal revenue tax alcohol used in the arts, medical and other like preparations. from internal revenue tax alcohol used in the arts, medical and other like preparations. For some time past Commissioner Miller of the Internal Revenue Bureau has been diligently at work in the preparation of regulations under which this provision of the act may be carried into execution. It being the law of the land both Secretary Carliste and Commissioner Miller, as administrative officers of the Government, are earnestly endesvoring to find some way by which it may become operative, but thus far the solution of the matter seems as remote as at the beginning. The great question to be solved, in the view of the matter taken by treasury officials, is, how cas effective supervision be established over the 200,000 druggists and other prospective beneficiaries of the act without the aid of a very large force of agents. This force, the Secretary has not at his disposal and, under the law, has no authority to appoint. Treasury officials who have given the matter much consideration and who advance these views say there seems to be only one course open to the officials and that is to postpone action in the matter until Congress reassembles in December, when, it was contended, the act would be either repealed outright or so modified as to admit of being executed without almost unlimited opportunity for fraud. There is at least one precedent for this course. On Aug. 5. 1861, Congress passed an act taxing all incomes above 800 3 per cent per annum. As in the present case no provisions for carrying it into effect were made, with the result that nothing was done under it until the meeting of the next Congress, when, on July 3, the act was repealed. Whether this course will be pursued in the present diemma cannot be stated, but it is under serious consideration.

It has been suggested that it be held during the Exposition, in the latter part of October, and it is probable that this idea will be carried out.

John Matthews Makes a flow of Rims self and Is Fined.

Officer Bartley of the Third District while passing the corner of Ninth and Franklin avenue, about 20 'clock yesterday afternoon during the Labor Day parade, saw an old man with a child in his arms sitting fon a bread-box in front of a grocery store. The man was evidently intoxicated and no ambreils to protect himself or the little child from the pouring rain. Officer Baitley took the child from the man's arms and turned it over to a bystander while he took the man over to the box and rang for the patrol wagon.

When it came Officer Ford took the child and covered it up to protect it from the rain, and it was taken with the man to the station. There the man gave his name as John Matthews, a laborer, residing at 8708 Hickory street. He was locked up and the child takes care of by Matron Hainesworth, who garbed it in dry garments. Later in the evening the child's mother came for it and took it home. Matthews was balled out. He was arraigned before Judge Paxon this morning on charges of being drunk on the street and also of carrying concealed weapons, as a pistol was found in his pocket. He was fined 55 but the fine was staid after court on promise of future good behavior.

"BLUMINE."

She Was the Daughter of a Begum and Very Charming Woman.

There is an interesting note on Mrs. Phil lips, the "Blumine" of Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus," to be found in the current number of the Westminster Review. It is written by a feminine connection of Biumine, a lady who was in her youth much attached to that charming heroine of romance. "To no other person," says this chronicler, "did he ever make any distinct reference to her she ever make any distinct reference to her feelings as regarded Carlyle, and only once to me-what might be expected from a fadit-less wife and devoted mother, as she was. She was arranging books in the library one mornine, when she turned to me and said:

"Lizzie, have you ever read 'Sartor Resartus' by Carlyle?"
'No. I have not."
"Well, get it, and read the 'Romance.' I am the heroine, and every word of it is true. He was then totor to my cousin, Charles Buller, and had made no name for himself; so of course I was told that any such idea could not be thought of for a moment. What could I do, with every one against it? Now any one might be proud to be his wife, and he has married a woman quite beneath him."

Biumine, "Lizzie" says, was "the daughhe has married a woman quite beneath him."

Biumine, "Lizzie" says, was "the daughter of a Begum at Hyderabad, a Persian princess by descent, who married Col. Kirkpairick, an English officer, holding a high post at the court there. Her hair, which Carlyle describes as "bronze red," was, she said, peculiar to the Persian royal family, in person she was far more foreign than English, and it was this rare combination of Eastern grace and beauty with the highest English culture which made her so very charming. She had a keen sense of humor and the kindest heart, and could not bear to give another pain. Had firmness of character been stronger in her, the whole tenor of her life might have been different; but gathering from the few references to her youth she made to me, it seemed that she too easily yielded to the wishes of the relatives with whom she had lived, and doubtless her large fortune and great attractions made them imagine no one was good enough for her."

CABLE CODE.

The Difficulties in the Way of Compiling undertaking by a difficulty that, so far, has defied all attempts at solution beyond a certain point. Despite the fact the rules of the defied all attempts at solution beyond a certain point. Despite the fact the rules of the cable companies permit him to lay under contribution eight languages the total number of words that can be used with safety for ceding purposes is only about 150,000. The reasons for this are twofold. First, the companies decline to permit the use of any code word of more than ten letters, and it is dangerous to employ those having less than seven, owing to the difficulty of detecting an error in short words. Further, thousands, nay huadreds of theusands of words are rejected because of the similarity of the tlegraphic symbols that make up the letters. Figures are rarely telegraphed. The possibility of noting an error in a group of arbitrary figures is very remote. Should a letter or two be "jumbled" in a code word, there are various ways or correcting the mistake—the sense, the context and reference to the code; but these guides do not apply to the case of figures. The only remedy for a suspected error is repetition of the message at an enhanced cost of 50 per cent. Numbers, therefore, are expressed by a code word. Errors in the transmission of amounts of money are very rare. A banker's code contains words for every possible sum of money, from a half-penny up to huadreds of thousands of pounds, and the authors have exhibited great ingenuity in making a limited supply of words do very extensive service.

It, has been asserted that wheat could not be successfully used to making whisky. The Uniontowa (Ky.) Distillery, which has a daily capacity or $8,000 sallons, is now running entirely and to its full capacity on wheat, which, it is found, makes more whisky to the bushel than corn, without allowing for the 4 lbs difference in weight between the two cereals. Wheat, which was solling at 600 per bu a mosth ago, is now commanding more money than in St. Louis from that is interested to purchase a number of hore and ship them to this farm, where it is the intention to feed them with wheat. This is in the nature of an experiment, but it is believed more money dan be realized for the wheat. In the shape of hor meat than by selling the grain in the markals.

The outlook for the Edropean maise crop this year, which averages about 370,000,000 bu, is poor, and it is believed that there will be an increased demand for rye and wheat for feeding purposes. There has also been quite serious damage to the European potato crop, which approximates yearly 2,750,000 bu, and this fact may increase the demand for wheat and rye. In parts of italy, says Beerbohm, there has been quite severe damage to the corn, crop from persistent drouth. The potato disease in Belgium is reported to have extended to from 10 to 60 per cent of the crop.

The Bulletin des Helles from its investigations of the French wheat crop, classifies the result as follows: Northwest, good; North, good to very good; North, good to very good. The French wheat crop this year would be one of the finest, if not the finest, of the century.

"Who says I don't receive ball news?" remarked T. W. ### VACATIONS CUT OFF.

Health Commissioner Homan's New Order About Dispensary Physicians.

Health Commissioner Homan has estabished a new rule regarding the treatment of Dispensary physicians, which deprives them of their vacations. It has been a custom since time immemorial to allow the Disrith pay. During the summer the Dispensary physicians applied to the Health Com-missioner for vacations, but they were told to wait. To-day the Health Commissioner issued a manifesto in which he informs the Dispensary physicians that if they take a leave of absence they must furnish and pay a satisfactory substitute during their ablears of absence they must furnish and pay a satisfactory substitute during their absence. In addition to this the Heaith Commissioner has refused to allow the Dispensary physicians anything for inspecting immigrants, although at the time he ordered the services performed he told them in an unequivocal manner that they would receive extra compensation for such work.

These acts of the Heaith Commissioner have greatly disturbed the harmony and effectiveness of dispensary work. The Dispensary physicians, Drs. Jordan, Kearney, Fitzpatrick and Moore, while they are not at liberty to say anything concerning the arbitrary methods adopted by their superior, apparently feel that they have been imposed upon and that promises made by the Heaith Commissioner when asked why he had made the innovation would give no other explanation than the simple assertion that "somebody must do the work." It is said that one of the dispensary physicians has the Heaith Commissioner's written promise of extra pay for inspecting immigrants during the World's Fair year and that he has never received anything except the thanks of the department for his services. They do not believe that the public would approve of so small and parsimonious a policy which deprives them of their well-earned brief wachtions or pay for extra work which they may be called upon to do, for stheir duties and hours are hard and long, and their saiaries very short. Merchants and others, they claim, give vacations to employes who have less ardnous duties and far better pay, and they think the citizens do not expect more of their subordinate public servants than they would of private employes.

BEAT HIS MOTHER.

And a Crowd Would Have Beaten Him but for the Police.

Andrew Monroe, a young man, is under arrest on the charge of disturbing his mother's peace. The Monroes live near Broadway and Soulard street, and the boy is said to be somewhat Yesterday Mrs. Monroe sought to reprimand him for some bad conduct, when he set upon her and began, it is alleged, to punch her. The fight drew a large crowd of people, who, when they learned that the boy was assaulting his mother, became quite angry and threatened to handle him rather roughly. The timely arrival of Officer Noonan saved young Monroe from a good beating, in all probability.

William Ball Meets With a Fatal Acci-dent-William Pierson Held. William Bail, a tobacco worker, 85 years old and unmarried, died at the City Hospital yesterday aftermoon. Ball had a friendly wrestling match sanday night with William Pierson of 805 South Broadway and was thrown heavily. He had been ruptured about three years ago, and after he went to his three years ago, and after he went to his home, 220 Lucas avenue, he began to suffer great pains in his abdomen. Yesterday morning the pain was so intense and his abdomen so badly swollenthat he went to the City Hospital. Dr. Marks performed laparatomy on him, the incision revealing a punctured intestine. He never railied from the effects of the operation. Pierson was held pending an investigation.

POLITICS AND GUNS

They Cause the Arrest of Martin Mc-Donough and Henderson Young.

Martin schonough, a young man who is said to be prominent in Eleventh Ward pol-ics, will be tried either this afternoon or at some day in the near future, on the charge of disturbing the peace of Henderson Young, a colored voter of the ward.

The case is an old one, but has never as yet reached the public. The alleged disturbance occurred at Besch's Cherokes Garden, Cherokes sireet and lowa avenue, on the occasion of the last Republican primaries.

den, Cherokee street and Iowa avenue, on the occasion of the last Republican primaries.

There was a polling place at the garden and brawls were numerous all day in the vicinity of the place.

As to the particular trouble between McDonough and Young there are several different versions. The one on which he was arrested is told by Sergt. Durgen and Officer Agara of the second District and Henderson Young. In response to the call for extra police at the polls the two police officers were hurrying to the scene when they saw the negro running east on Cherokee street, followed by McDonough, who had a revolver in his hand. They overtook both men, and Young stated that he had tried to vote and was run away from the place by McDonough. On this statement the white man was arrested.

Another story is told of the affair. It is said that Young and McDonough had been mixing up in arguments all day and that they finally got into a fight, during which the negro assaulted McDonough with a soda bottle. McDonough then went away and, it is said, returned with a revolver and chased Young away from the polls, firing a shot at him in the bargain, it is dalimed. Then came the arrest.

But friends of McDonough elaim that the negro was very surly and overbearing at the polls, and finally got mixed up with McDonough, it is claimed, wrestied with the negro and drews a revolver on him. McDonough, it is claimed, wrestied with the negro and wrested the gun from his grasp. Then the negro was very surly and overbearing at the polls, and finally got mixed up with the negro and wrested the gun from his grasp. Then the negro may followed by McDonough.

There is a great deal of bad feeling in the case on both sides, and the trial will be contested bitterly.
